Democratic Ticket, 1852.

FOR PRESIDENT,

STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS, of Illinois.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

R. M. T. HUNTER, of Virginia.

WEDNESDAY, : : MARCH 3, 1852.

FOR SALE AT THE DESK.

Copies of the Daily Paper can be procured at the desk, with or without envelopes, at 5 cents per single copy or 35 cents per dozen.

Mr. Stephen, of Georgia, has written a letter to a friend in that State against the proposition of the Union party to send delegates to the Baltimore convention. We presume the Union party need not trouble themselves on that point. The Baltimore convention will be a democratic one, and will not need the Union party. Those of that party who are democrats will doubtless be welcomed at Baltimore, if they are sent by democrats. It would be strange indeed if the said Stephen did not see the utter preposterousness of his taking any part in a Baltimore convention.

The convention will not recognize the necessity of a Union party, nor will they admit that such a party can save the Union, if it is in danger. We hold that the democratic party is the only one whose policy will preserve the Union. They hold it the duty of all parties to use such means as will accomplish that end. In this case we decide that the Yeoman is right; but to settle the point, the organ must look into the proceedings of the democratic State convention, and see if there is anything there to meet the case. If they can find nothing against, the organ will be in a decided quandary.

THE INVASION OF ENGLAND.—The London Times has an article on the rumored invasion of England from France, a rumor which somewhat stirred the people of the "fast-anchored aisle." The danger of such an invasion is doubtless greatly exaggerated: the ability of Louis Napoleon to effect it is fully considered in the article we copy. The army of France comprises 452,984 men, 96,901 horses, and 1236 pieces of artillery. The French navy, has 264 sailing vessels, 100 steamers, and 4 sail and steamships. The article we copy supposes that this force, which is the entire of the navy of France, augmented by 291 merchant steamers, and 366 sailing ships of the same description, could transport 151,000 fighting men to England in 30 to 34 hours. The French fleet can find ample accommodations in the 26 ports between Brest and Boulogne, and can be perfectly protected by the forts in the harbors. The dispatch with which a French army may be put on board a fleet, may be inferred from the fact that ten thousand men were landed at Civita Vecchia, in the late war upon the Roman Republic, with all the arms and baggage, within ten days of the receipt of the order at Paris. To meet this force Great Britain is estimated to have a generally disposable force of 110,946 men, 450 ships, and 157 war-steamer. The Times, however, puts the grand total of the military force below this calculation, and in point of effectiveness very far from what it ought to be, provided that invasion is among the probabilities of the day.

THE FIRST BABY.—In a novel "The Genius," recently published, occurs this striking picture of domestic felicity, which crusty old bachelors will read with interest:

"If 'the baby' was asleep, no one was allowed to speak, except on pain of instant banishment: the piano was closed, the guitar was tabooed, books were interdicted, and the bell was muted. If Mr. Vincent wished to enjoy a quiet hour, he must go out of the house lest the smoke might hurt 'the baby,' and lest the street door might disturb its slumbers, he must make his toilet by the garden gate, reach the street through the garden gate. The doctor was never of the house—not because 'the baby' slept well for it was most alarmingly healthy, but because she was afraid it might be taken with some dreadful disease, and no doctor at hand, as the panic passes off so easily."

ENTANGLING ALLIANCES.—This is a great bugbear just now in some quarters; and perhaps it is as well to be frightened now, when there is no danger, as at any other time. It's well only to be scared when there is no petrified at hand, as the panic passes off so easily.

But whilst the shadow of the thing is so hideous, the substance passes unnoticed. A year or two ago we all heard of a Bulwer and Clayton treaty about Central America, wherein we formed an alliance with England to construct a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific, pledged mutual protection and mutual interest in the work, and invited all nations to join us in the entangling alliance. The States of Central America were no parties to this treaty, although it concerned a work to be made through their territory. There is but one comfort about the whole business; and that is, that the States of Central America will never consent to the arrangement. They see the theatre upon which the future disputes of this entangling alliance must be settled.

What makes this whole business still more execrable, the State department had a treaty already signed by our Charge Mr. Hise, of this State, and the authorized agent of the State of Nicaragua, giving to the United States alone the right to construct this canal in the fullest possible manner. Instead of presenting it to the Senate, this entangling alliance was cooked up and ratified.

General Concha has again resigned the post of Captain General of Cuba, and the government will accept his resignation.

It is now, just as we expected, the editor of the Yeoman, the old organ at Frankfort, gives the editors of the Times a genteel lecture, which they need. The paragraph in the Times which called out this rebuke we must publish, that our readers may see it. Light ought not to be kept under a bushel. When great things are announced, all the world and the rest of mankind should give ear. Here it is:

limited and local in their circulation, or, if of general circulation, they cherish views and aims other than those avowed and promulgated by the democratic party of the State.

He had regarded this as simply ridiculous; but Tanner gives it a very quiet and dignified rebuke. He thinks the last sentence applies to somebody. He does not say who. The truth is, it applies to him and to nobody else. He is the man hit, and no mistake. The gassy production could have been aimed at nobody but him.

The editor of the Yeoman says:

There is one thing very evident already, and that is, that the Times will never hide the light of its torch a bushel, or suffer detriment to its interests in the name of the modesty of its editor. The stoical editor, one of the editors, at least, estimates himself quite as high as does his most devoted friends.

The following, which we take from the introductory article of the Times, prettily highlights the editor's dread and plague—an insect in the social circle, and is a perfect burthen to himself. Arrival of Kossuth!

Gov. Kossuth and suite reached our city last night about half past eleven o'clock, on board the steamer Lady Pike, from Madison. His arrival was announced by a salute from Capt. Knapp's Artillery Company. Upon the arrival of the boat at the landing the Governor and lady were conveyed to the Gault House, where they were followed by a large crowd. The formal reception will take place this morning.

THE RIVER AND WEATHER.—The river was rising very slowly last evening, with about 14 feet water on the land. The weather, yesterday, was clear and pleasant.

ARREST OF THIEVES.—Yesterday morning officer Gilmore succeeded in arresting four notorious thieves, named Elijah Marshall, Samuel Spaine, William Swift, and Henry Wilson. They arrived here on Saturday on the Blue Wing, from Madison. It is supposed that they are the individuals who committed so many robberies at Cincinnati and other places where Kossuth has been. They will be before the police court this morning.

THE CHILIAN REVOLUTION.—The Philadelphia Ledger gives extracts of a private letter, describing the late Revolution in Chile, of which we have already received accounts by telegraph. It appears from this statement that a party of Americans, forty-five in number, was attacked by the revolutionary forces, to the number of 300, while engaged in the construction of the Copiapo Railroad. The rebels killed and wounded several of the Americans, took possession of the road, and advanced upon the city of Copiapo, which they seized and held and killing many of the citizens. The Americans at Caldera became alarmed for their own safety, fled for protection on board the Bolivia steamer, and the writer of the letter was among the number. A Philadelphian named Goodell was impressed by the rebels to turn the locomotive upon the Copiapo road, nor did he again appear, although the steamer waited to take him on board. The affair created much excitement, and quiet was restored when the steamer sailed.

DELIGHTFUL SPECTACLE.—A man named Steingrave, convicted of murder, was hung at Ashland, Ohio, on the 27th ult., in presence of about five thousand persons, the populace having the day previous demolished the jail yard fence in order to witness the execution! The spectacle, it is said, was very revolting, the prisoner being a heavy man, and the rope stretched so much that he fell upon his knees. His neck was unbroken, and he was then drawn up and literally strangled, hanging about thirty minutes before life was pronounced extinct.

For St. Louis.—The fine steamer Pike No. 9 is the regular mail-boat for St. Louis to-day. Passengers traveling on the Pike will meet with every attention and comfort desired. Capt. Joe Reed, an experienced and skillful officer, and a gentleman proverbial for his polite and kind attention to passengers, is in command. We heartily commend the Pike to the traveling community.

For Col. James Gadsden, of South Carolina, writes to the State-Press (L.A.) Gazette, that a colony of Hunters is organizing in South Carolina to emigrate to California. He says that if the California Legislature responds favorably to the memorial of the proposed colony, asking leave to settle there with their slaves, they will be seen with some 500 to 600 domestics, with 200 to 300 axes, opening the highway to the cultivation and civilization of the shores of the Pacific.

The amount of 10,000 francs has been subscribed in the cañon of the Grisons, Switzerland, for the establishment of a separate line of telegraph to form connexion with the Austrian lines. The sum of 300,000 francs has been taken up out of the 400,000 required for the establishment of a general system of Telegraph throughout the republic, and the preparatory work has been commenced.

MEMORANDUM OF STEAMER LADY FRANKLIN.—Left St. Louis on the 25th at 1 o'clock, P. M., with over 130 passengers. Bosto in port for Louisville, Pike No. 9 and Hindoo. Heavy robbery.—A passenger on the noon train of cars from Frankfort had his pocket picked just before the train reached this city yesterday, of $1050. The gentleman did not miss the money until he had got out of the cars at the depot. The police were immediately informed of the robbery, but had not succeeded in arresting the thief up to a late hour last night. We did not learn the gentleman's name who lost the money.

Officer Krider of the First Ward Police, arrested a free negro named George Duke, on Monday night, who is suspected of having killed an old negro in the employ of John Irvin, some two weeks since. The affair will be investigated, at the Police Court this morning.

FINE TOBACCO.—Two hogsheads of fine manufacturing leaf tobacco were sold at Todt's warehouse yesterday, at $6 55 and $5 85 per hundred. The tobacco was raised by Mrs. Hawley, of Green county, Ky., and was purchased by Mr. Musseleman, of this city and Wm. Nolan, of Shelbyville, for manufacturing purposes.

A hogshead of tobacco raised by Mr. Dye, of Larue county, Ky., sold at the Pickett warehouse yesterday, at $6 10 per hundred. Mr. Musseleman was the purchaser.

The Histrionic company did not perform last night, owing to the indisposition of one of the members of the company.

Over half a million of pounds of bulk pork was sold at St. Louis on Thursday last, deliverable at Keokuk, at $10 for shoulders, 65 cents for sides and 75 for hams.

The types made our theatrical notice yesterday read odd enough. The errors were so apparent that we need not name them.

Capt. Knapp, with two pieces of cannon, was upon the wharf to salute Kossuth upon his arrival last night.

The Schuylkill, from Nashville, is expected to arrive to-morrow.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25, 1852.

The letter of the Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, has produced some excitement among the quadrigues; while all sensible men look upon it as a thing that must have been expected by everybody in the habit of thinking and reflecting on political events.— Could any man in his sober senses expect that Mr. Stephens would go into a democratic convention, and agree before hand to support the nominee of that convention? Certainly not.— And again; could any one suppose that a democratic convention would allow Mr. Stephens or Mr. Toombs to take seats and vote, without first abjuring whisky and uniting with the democrats on democratic principles? Those who cherished such mad hopes are disappointed with Mr. Stephens' letter; but those who can appreciate his position and their own, never expected any other denouement of the plot in which this gentleman figured so conspicuously as a leader.

There can be but two parties in this country—the democratic and whig party, and there may at times be coalitions for particular purposes; but these must necessarily terminate as soon as the object for which they were established have been attained. This is now the case in regard to the constitution and the Union, both of which may certainly, at this moment, be considered out of danger; and hence the coalition which was formed to maintain them, has no longer any reasonable foundation in fact, and is, consequently, already virtually dissolved, without any express declaration to that effect. Mr. Stephens' letter contains no new view on the subject; it is merely an apology for his own constrained position; nothing more.

There can be no doubt but that the Union democrats will have to separate, in the same manner, from the Union whigs. Their occupation as a portion of a coalition is gone, their mission is fulfilled, and they must now return to the old democratic faith, as members of the entire party, and not distinguished from the rest as a sect. In this consists their only safety and the safety of the party with which they act.— Separate organizations on the eve of a presidential election would be the death-blow to all our prospects.

The presence of the Hon. James Buchanan in the capital of Virginia seems to have breathed a new breath of life into the excitable people of the good Old Dominion, as appears from the number of democratic papers that have recently boasted the name of Judge Douglas to the head of their columns. Mr. Buchanan seems to have essentially waked the wrong passenger.

The truth is, the South perceive that Mr. Buchanan has no hold of the people of the northern States—that he has carried his own State only under protest. They see that he can neither obtain the nomination, nor be elected should he be nominated. And for this reason they turn, not to Mr. Buchanan's great antagonist, Gen. Cass, but to a man who can be elected if nominated; and thus they naturally turn to the "Little Giant of the West," the idol of the young democracy, and the man whose popularity is spontaneous with the people, and not the result of the continued exertions of certain whippers-in, whom everybody knows as a set of hireling politicians, who would make a business out of a work of love.

A SCENE NOT IN THE BILLS.—Conspicuous among the audience, says the Baltimore Mirror in the parquette of the Museum on Saturday night, was a country love-born swain with his intended. Whenever the dialogue on the stage turned upon love or marriage, the verdant Adonis bestowed a series of most energetic hugs upon his equally affectionate dear, which attracted not only universal attention, but impeded the progress of the corps dramatique, who at times were unable to continue their roles from the laughter excited by the loving manoeuvres.— Wholly engrossed with the tender passions, the turtles discovered not that general attention was attracted towards them, and commenced a kissing scene. During the progress of this very pleasant but too public pastime, a wag seated beside the bride who was to be, attached to her back a placard, that was on his seat, labeled in large characters "TAKEN!" The explosion of laughter that ensued was universal, upon which the affectionate pair darted down stairs amid deafening cheers.

The entire number of Indians inhabiting all parts of our country, according to the latter authority, amounts to about 418,000.
